Beam Me to the River!

Captain Picard of the USS Enterprise enters the Holodeck, the virtual reality room on-board the ship where, with the help of the Computer, images of the past come to life.

Captain Picard: Computer! Time travel program. Planet: Earth. Time: Late 20th century. Location: The Hudson River, New York State. Engage!

Computer: Working...

Picard: What a gorgeous view! Look - a sailing vessel. A sloop, how marvelous! Identify.

Computer: Working... Hudson River Sloop Clearwater, 106 ft. long wooden sailing vessel. Launched May 17, 1969. South Bristol, Maine, Earth. Brainchild of folk musician and social activist Pete Seeger. Vessel was used well into the 21st century to educate the public about the environment. It became the symbol for an environmental organization called Clearwater.

Picard: She's about to jibe! Amazing. What's that? There are children on board. They are singing!

Computer: An acclaimed education program called Classroom of the Waves was a tool the organization used to fulfill its mission of protecting the Hudson and other waterways. This program allowed children to participate in their own learning. Children navigated the vessel, steering and using compasses and charts. They analyzed the river's water performing chemical tests and identified plankton with microscopes. Students caught fish using trawl-style nets and set up temporary aquaria to study them.

Picard: Fascinating! Did they have any weaponry on-board to enforce their will on the citizenry?

Computer: Working... No weaponry listed. The vessel was built after a style of cargo and passenger boat that sailed the rivers on Earth in the 18th and 19th centuries. The record reports that the organization, known as a non-profit entity, possessed its own prime directive: teaching people to get involved and take responsibility for their environment. This was a most effective weapon to defeat pollution and apathy.

Picard: Having children be involved was a sound strategy. They seem to be enjoying themselves immensely. How novel to use a sailboat as a means to draw attention to the environmental crisis.

Computer: It was thought that if children understood how important rivers were to their lives and the lives of so many animals, that these same children, when grown to adults, would be protectors of the environment rather than polluters.

Picard: But how did such a "non-profit entity" survive during that era of corporate greed and materialism?

Computer: Working... The organization was subsidized.

Picard: The Government! I find that hard to fathom. Correct me if I am wrong, Computer, but Earth governments in the late 20th century were marked by partisan sniping and gridlock. The environment, oddly enough, was not considered a priority.

Computer: Government grant support was only about 1%. Most of this organization's support came from individual citizens who cared about the planet's future. The record shows that people who joined the organization were given the opportunity to sail on-board the sloop Clearwater.

Picard: To actually sail on a traditional boat while helping such a worthy cause - what a superb concept. Computer, show me more.

Computer: Working...

Picard: I see a large gathering of people? What is this?

Computer: The gathering is a festival called the Great Hudson River Revival.

The Revival was a celebration of the efforts to clean the Hudson River and other waterways.

Picard: I see more children under a tent looking through glass tanks. Enlarge. What is that?

Computer: The Clearwater organization brought samples of the river, both fresh and saltwater, to this festival. At this Education Tent, aquaria with fish on display were set up so adults could bring their children to see the diverse array of life that lived in the Hudson. Trained education officers were on hand to identify the catch and inform the visitors about current threats to the river and how they could help.

Picard: What was the nature of these threats?

Computer: PCB contamination, inappropriate development, lack of river access, pollution from agricultural and highway run-off, weakening of clean water and toxic waste clean-up laws. The biggest threat was environmental ignorance.

Picard: PCBs! You mean the highly toxic poly-chlorinated biphenyls? Barbarians. But then I forgot that Earth was ushering in the period known as the Dark Times. How successful was Clearwater in solving these problems?

Computer: Working... Success was directly related to the amount of public participation. The organization's advocacy wing began an innovative Activist Network using the rudimentary world-wide telecommunications system, known as the Internet. This was the first time people could send mail electronically and it allowed members to respond to legislators to urgent issues. The on-board education program reached thousands of children. For many children, their sail on the Clearwater was the most memorable and meaningful educational event they experienced.

Picard: So, the more people who joined, the more successful the organization was in reaching its goals. Grassroots was the term applied to such efforts, I believe. What about their efforts against polluters?

Computer: The organization was involved in a long struggle with a corporation called General Electric over vast quantities of waste PCBs deposited by them in the river. The corporation resisted cleaning up its toxic waste.

Picard: General Electric? I am not familiar with that name.

Computer: The History Archives reveal that General Electric was a huge multi-national conglomerate with a dismal environmental record. There is no record of GE after the year 2010.

Picard: What happened? Were they victims of a Klingon war party?

Computer: Negative. They indulged in a common corporate practice of the times: downsizing. Apparently, they downsized themselves into non-existence.

Picard: Poetic justice. So, in summary, Clearwater was both a boat and an organization that educated about, advocated for, and celebrated this tiny strip of water called the Hudson. They gave thousands of adults and children the opportunity to sail, learn, and get involved to solve environmental problems. Anything else?

Computer: My memory has probed the Archives and discovered a quotation from an Earth legislator regarding Clearwater.

Picard: Commence playback!

Computer: "Having lived my entire life in close proximity to Long Island Sound and the Hudson River, I know first-hand how vital the work is that Clearwater is doing to restore our waterways and bring them back to life." There is some sub-space interference disrupting the recording, Captain. Working... "Clearwater serves as a catalyst for grassroots advocacy efforts to protect critical habitats, expand access to the River's shoreline, and combat the greatest threat to the Hudson River - PCB contamination. Clearwater is a first-class organization.... Speaking not just as a Member of Congress but also as a mother of three, I thank you for making a difference." - Congresswoman Nita M. Lowey of New York. There is much more correspondence from teachers, children, and the general populace that refer to the Clearwater available for playback.

Picard: That will not be necessary. The impact of this boat and the people who worked for her is clear. Computer, disengage the Holodeck program.

Phil Leo

Begin a search through the Music Archives for playback.

Computer: What search parameters, Captain?

Picard: The music of Pete Seeger. Make it so!

JOIN IN AND HELP US CELEBRATE!

This year marks Hudson River Sloop Clearwater's 30th anniversary of environmental education, advocacy, and joyous celebration of the gains we have made to establish a healthier Hudson River and a cleaner shoreline. The Great Hudson River Revival began nineteen years ago as a manifestation of that spirit of celebration, and your membership is vital to Clearwater, Revival, and the health of our river environment.

Benefits of Clearwater Membership:

- ◆ Discounts on tickets for next year's Revival and other Clearwater concerts and events, and advance notice for all Clearwater events.
- ◆ An opportunity to sail on the sloop Clearwater, either for a week as a volunteer crew member, or on a 3-hour member sail.
- ◆ A subscription to Clearwater's bi-monthly newsletter, the Navigator.
- ◆ A 10% discount on Clearwater merchandise.
- ◆ An invitation to our riverside Annual Gathering each autumn.
- ◆ An opportunity to vote for Clearwater's Board of Directors.
- ◆ A cleaner Hudson River.

Yes! I want to help!

Your name could be here too!

If you would like to become a Friend of the Revival for 1996, call Clearwater at 914-454-7673. All contributions are tax deductible.

EVEN 5 MINUTES CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE!

More than ever before, we must let our elected representatives know we are entitled to a clean and healthy environment.

You CAN HELP!

EDUCATE YOURSELF...

Stop at the Clearwater Tent, Activist and Sloop Club Areas today to learn more about important environmental issues. Call a local environmental group or visit your local library for more information.

EDUCATE YOUR COMMUNITY...

Talk to friends and neighbors. Write a Letter to the Editor - a great way to attract attention to an important environmental issue. Your letter can help reinforce a positive article, or counter misinformation.

Keep your letter under 250 words and include facts and personal experiences.

PICK UP A PHONE...

Call your state and federal representatives about issues that concern you. Legislative offices keep track of all phone calls; even a small number of calls can have a big impact. When calling, be clear and concise and ask for a written response. Legislators' phone numbers are in the blue pages of your phone book.

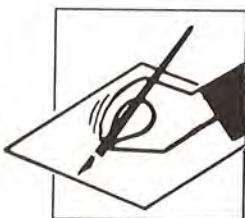

DIRECT LOBBYING...

Visit your legislators in person - it's one of the best ways to influence legislation. The Clearwater Tent and the Activist Area have more information about citizen lobby days. Get to know your representatives. When the People Lead, the Leaders Will Follow!

PICK UP A PEN...

Letters from constituents play an important role in shaping legislators' positions on key issues. When writing about a piece of legislation, include the bill number and ask for a written response. Addresses are in the blue pages of your phone book.

Information provided by John Samatulski of Environmental Advocates, Nonna Schtipelman of Clearwater and Jason Babbie of NYPIRG.

◀KANATSI OHAREKE ▶

(pronounced ga-na-jo-hla'-ga)

For the second consecutive year, Tom Porter will help open Clearwater's Great Hudson River Revival. His Mohawk name is Sakokwenonkwas. His grandmother was a Bear Clan matriarch from the Mohawk Valley. He is a United Nations Eco-Volunteer, working to promote harmony with nature. Also a teacher, carpenter, researcher, writer, and consultant, he has published Tsi niion kwarihoton ("Our Ways") and Clanology. He is a former Bear Clan chief of the Akwasasne ("land where the partridge drums") reservation, where he helped establish the Freedom School.

Tom Porter is also spiritual leader of the three-year-old Mohawk Kanatsiohareke settlement. The name means "the clean pot," after depressions created by eddys in the smooth creek bedrock that reminded earlier Mohawks of their cooking pots. The settlement is located about 50 miles west of Albany in the Mohawk Valley, close to the site of a Mohawk ancestral long house. And after 200 years, the people have returned home.

The Mohawk Valley was once a major east-west colonial trade route, where European settlers and the Mohawk, one of the tribes in the newly formed Iroquois nation, lived in peace. After the Revolutionary and French & Indian Wars, however, the Mohawks fled to the north; their descendants today populate Akwasasne, the St. Regis reservation that straddles the US-Canadian border along the St. Lawrence River. But the ravages of pollution and politics have taken their toll at Akwasasne. PCB-laced water has made the fish inedible and the battle over gambling has threatened to extinguish the very fabric of Mohawk traditional life.

Porter calls Kanatsiohareke an extension of Akwasasne. Here, a few Mohawk families are creating an immersion culture, steeped in traditional Mohawk social and spiritual ways. The 300-acre site overlooks the Mohawk River and includes three large 19th-century wood-frame buildings, formerly a county adult home. The structures need lots of work.

The Kanatsiohareke community has had generous support, says Mohawk Jonathan Wagers. Benefactors helped with the property purchase. People from the neighborhood brought food to welcome the Mohawk families, and volunteers from the capital district and beyond have pitched in with carpentry and other work. Students from Cornell, the University at Albany, Virginia Tech, and others as far as Ottawa help with projects like preparing the fields for the summer's pick-your-own strawberry crop. Several major new projects will also help keep the settlement self-sufficient. The new Kanatsiohareke Bed & Breakfast will open soon, offering five rooms with newly installed private baths. And the Kanatsiohareke Gift Shop, open 9am-7pm daily, carries an array of mostly Iroquois crafts including jewelry, pottery, quilts, and ash-split baskets.

Many of the items are made at Kanatsiohareke.

On Saturday & Sunday, June 22-23, Kanatsiohareke's 2nd annual June Festival and Auction will feature crafts, socials, a band from Akwasasne, horse & wagon rides, AND Elvis Presley ("the real one," assures Mohawk spokesperson Marcella David, tongue-in-cheek). What's a social? It includes traditional Mohawk drumming, singing, and dancing, and guests are welcome. What's up for auction? Fine quilts, and Iroquois baskets and crafts. There will be food, too: traditional Mohawk corn soup and fried bread, as well as a chicken barbecue on Saturday and tacos on Sunday. Admission is a modest $3 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under. For an information flyer, call Kanatsiohareke at 518-673-5092. It's a well-earned celebration for a community that has come a long, long way home.

SLOOP CLUBS

slüp' klub: from the dutch sloep [1629]: a fore-and-aft rigged boat with one mast and a single headsail jib; and the middle english klubba: an association of persons for some common object, i.e. a sloop

Ubi sub ubi.

- Ferry Sloop Woody Guthrie motto

The first Sloop Clubs were founded in 1971 (Happy 25th Anniversary!) to provide shore support for the Clearwater boat and crew. As the years passed, they took on diverse roles. In all cases they became little arms of Clearwater reaching out to communities up and down the river.

Sloop Clubs organize festivals, run sailing programs, monitor the river and its tributaries for pollution, attend town board meetings, and speak out on local environmental and river access issues. They present concerts and singalongs, crew on Clearwater, and network with local community groups and larger environmental organizations.

They have monthly meetings and potluck dinners. And yes, they still provide shore support for the boat and crew.

Membership is open to all. Become involved as much (or as little) as you like. These clubs are all volunteer-run, so they constantly evolve to reflect the interests of the members.

The Sloop Club Area is a good place to meet members of the Sloop Club from your town. Stop by and say hello!

Organizations interested in participating in the Revival '97 Activist Area should contact the Clearwater office by January 31, 1997. We select 50 non-profit environmental, activist, or community groups.

“The Price of Liberty is Eternal Publicity.”

-Pete Seeger

HUMAN-I-TEES IS PROUD TO SUPPORT CLEARWATER

Like Clearwater, we believe in the principle set out by Pete. Among other ideals, liberty is also a clean, healthy environment. It is social justice. Liberty is made up of many living ideals to be heeded, upheld and publicized. We must educate one another and celebrate our liberties.

THIS IS HUMAN-I-TEES CREED

We promote environmental and social causes through our product fundraising programs for school and community groups. Each year, we donate 20% of our profits to environmental and social justice organizations striving for a healthier Earth.

CELEBRATION AND EDUCATION

All of our fundraising items “publicize” and celebrate these beliefs. Our high quality products showcase and speak for endangered or threatened animals, the environment, and social justice.

OUR FUNDRAISER CAN HELP YOU TOO

You can feel good about doing a Human-i-Tees fundraiser. In addition to earning high profits for your organization, you can be assured that we are doing our share by supporting organizations concerned with the ideals of liberty.

ALTERNATIVE MARKETPLACE

An open air market offering products and information for the socially and environmentally conscious.

"Buy white paper, and you become a sponsor of dioxin. Buy cheap clothing, and you become a supporter of child slave labor. Buy gasoline for $1.30 a gallon, and you are passing onto society another $5 to $8 in health impacts, infrastructure costs, and global security costs. These days the term 'caveat emptor' - buyer beware - has a whole new meaning."

Clearwater Environmental Director

Bridgewater Solar Works

You've entered under the Rainbow Arch. As you make your way into the festival grounds, the first stage you'll see will be Clearwater's signature Solar Stage. You'll know it by the beautiful sun painted on the stage floor.

The solar electric panels turn sunlight into electricity that runs the PA equipment for the stage. Solar power is the ONLY source of power at this stage. Feel free to take a look, and ask questions of Ed Witkin, and don't miss the Bridgewater Solar Works booth in the Alternative Marketplace area nearby, with a solar-powered fountain and cooling station.

Since 1969 Bridgewater has been designing and building solar electric generators for home use, construction sites, solar-powered PA systems, and practically any other application where electricity is needed. Bridgewater provides consultation services in passive solar home design and promotes the use of solar energy through educational displays at festivals, schools, and other public venues.

To apply for the Revival '97 Alternative Marketplace, contact the Clearwater office by January 31, 1997. We select 15 for-profit and non-profit businesses, merchants and organizations with alternative information and/or products.

Does your mutual fund money go places you never dreamed of?

If you're like most people, you choose your mutual funds based simply on the numbers. But if you look beyond the numbers, you'll often find you're investing in companies and industries you'd never want to.

Like tobacco. In a recent survey conducted by Co-op America, nine of the 15 largest mutual funds listed tobacco companies as one of their top ten holdings. It's the kind of investment that may not be good for either your conscience or your wallet.

So make sure you know what you own. Find out what kind of companies are in your mutual funds.

For more information on mutual funds that invest in socially and environmentally responsible companies and products or for a prospectus, contact your financial advisor or Calvert Group at 800-987-4894.

The job is never done.

The staff and crew and volunteers of Clearwater know it's true, and we at NYNEX do, too... no matter what you've already done to improve the environment and no matter how successful your environmental program has been, there's always more that can be done. At NYNEX, we're proud of our past accomplishments; changing to a lighter paper stock in our White Pages and trimming the borders of our directories to save a cumulative 2,500 tons of paper annually; using directory paper with at least 25% recycled content; printing on both sides of our telephone bills to save paper and mailing costs; and developing markets for recycled telephone directories, including telephone bill return envelopes, which now include 100% post-consumer recycled content, at least 50% of which is old phone books. That's some of what we've already done, and we're committed to doing even more – including supporting the good works of organizations like Clearwater.

NYNEX Yellow Pages is dedicated to making changes that create a healthier environment.
Together, we all can make a big difference.

PERFORMERS

Rick Adam

RICK ADAM

In the imaginative world of Rick Adam, hands become camels, a carpenter's saw turns into a concert instrument, simple objects soar into fantasy, and one man becomes an entire orchestra. You'll have to see it to believe it!

Rick Adam has been entertaining for over 20 years. His credits include touring northern Russia and appearing on PBS television. In 1993, a video of Rick's one man band was added to the permanent collection of the Smithsonian Institute.

JACKIE ALPER

Political activist, lover of the arts, singer, and humanist, Jackie has observed the evolution of modern folk music and the modern labor movement from the inside. She was involved in the Civil Rights movement and in the folk "revival" from the Almanac Singers on. She sang with the Priority Ramblers, Ronnie Gilbert, and Woody Guthrie, and she was the early fifth member of The Weavers. For 21 years, she was the voice of "Mostly Folk" on WRPI-FM in Troy, before retiring a few years ago.

She now oversees the extensive collection of works left by her late husband, photographer Joe Alper. Noted for capturing the music world on film, his work adorns recordings by Bob Dylan, John Coltrane, Judy Collins, and many more.

THE AMIDONS

Peter & Mary Alice Amidon have been performing their song, story, and dance programs together since 1975, leading school and library residencies in New England and beyond. They perform at major music, dance, and storytelling festivals throughout the northeast, as a duo and with their sons, Stefan and Sam. The family is currently booking a third performing tour of Europe.

The Amidons are members of the Brattleboro Brass Band, as well as founding members of the New England Dancing Masters. They are also producers and publishers of traditional dance materials for children and communities. They have recorded six albums of songs for all ages.

LAS AÑORANZAS (REMEMBRANCES)

This dynamic ensemble of older Latina singers and storytellers performs traditional Puerto Rican songs, children's games, stories, and playlets based on their life experiences. Their innovative presentations explore links between and among generations, and are inspiring for audiences of all ages and cultures.

The group is presented through Elders Share the Arts (ESTA), a nationally recognized community arts organization founded in 1979 in New York City. ESTA is dedicated to validating personal histories, honoring diverse traditions, and connecting generations and cultures through "living history arts."

Davis Bates

THE BAREFOOT BOYS

Rich Bala and Tom White are an old-time string band duo, currently working on their first album together as The Barefoot Boys.

Rich has performed traditional folk music on his own since 1986. He plays guitar, harmonica, and mountain dulcimer, and handles lead vocals. He has two solo recordings on Wizmak Productions, Hudson Valley Traditions and Home for the Harvest.

Tom, the co-owner of Wizmak with wife Geri, is a "wiz" on a wide variety of instruments, including fiddle, banjo, mandolin, concertina, and hammer dulcimer. He and his wife have released 3 recordings of their own, in addition to producing some 20 other projects on their label.

▲▲▲ PERFORMERS

JOHN BASINGER

Longtime member of The National Theater of the Deaf, storyteller-interpreter John Basinger has performed at many festivals and is an active slam poet. For two decades he taught theater and sign language at Connecticut's Three Rivers Community Technical College, and he also appeared in the feature film Children of a Lesser God.

Recent projects include writing an historical Revolutionary War drama involving Benedict Arnold, based on the burning of New London and the Battle of Groton Heights. He has also been performing John Milton's Paradise Lost.

Minna Bromberg

DAVIS BATES

A storyteller and singer from Colrain, Massachusetts, Davis Bates works in a traditional style to foster a sense of community feeling and peace. His stories come from his own family, from New England, and from around the world.

Davis is an active member of the Pioneer Valley Folklore Society and the Western New England Storytellers' Guild, and performs at schools, libraries, and community gatherings throughout the Northeast. He and his wife Robin Brooks, who met each other at Revival, happily share stories.

DAN BERN

Dan was born in Mt. Vernon, Iowa, the son of a concert pianist, and he has been touring both the US and Europe for the past 10 years as a singer-songwriter. In 1992 he received the National Academy of Songwriters Award. He is currently working with Chuck Plotkin (who has produced recordings for Bruce Springsteen and many others) on his first CD on the Sony-Work Group label, scheduled for September 1996 release.

Joe Bruchac

MINNA BROMBERG

Often describing her introduction to Clearwater as "conscription," Minna Bromberg has found her work with the organization to be "among the best accidents that ever happened" to her. Throughout the years, whether as volunteer crew, educator, or scheduler, Minna has brought her capabilities, dedication, and enthusiasm to each position. To everyone's delight she's always happy to bring her powerful voice and evocative songwriting as well. Her 1995 recording, Wherever I've Come From, Wherever I Go, continues to excite both loyal fans and new listeners.

Jesse Bruchac

Margaret Bruchac

Eshu Bumpus

JOSEPH & JESSE BRUCHAC

Clearwater is honored to welcome Joseph and Jesse Bruchac, father and son, members of the Missiquoi Abenaki Nation, from the foothills of the Adirondacks.

With poems, articles, and stories published in over 500 publications, storyteller Joseph has authored more than 60 books for adults and children, and won numerous awards, honors, and fellowships, most recently the 1995 Scientific American Young Readers Book Award for The Story of the Milky Way. He has performed widely throughout Europe and the US.

Like his father, Jesse grew up immersed in Native American culture. A devoted educator, Jesse has dedicated himself to teaching positive environmental values through Native American music, language, and dance. In addition to touring with the DawnLand Singers with his father, brother, and aunt, Jesse also performs and records traditional Abenaki drum songs and dance.

ESHU BUMPUS

Eshu Bumpus has worked in the arts for children for over fifteen years. His specialties include African folktales and story songs and trickster tales from around the world. Eshu is joined by Mitch Chakour, Herman Hampton and Tony Vacca on a wild assortment of instruments. Together they form the group Friends. Welcome back, Eshu.

▲ PERFORMERS

Cherish the Ladies

CHERISH THE LADIES

Formed in 1985 and named for a well-known jig, Cherish the Ladies is the premier all-woman ensemble on America's Irish traditional music scene. The six Irish-American women (all based in New York) include Joanie Madden (flute, tin whistle), Aoife Clancy (vocals, guitar), Mary Coogan (guitar), Mary Rafferty (accordion, flute), Donnal Long (fiddle), and Siobhan Egan (fiddle).

A Cherish the Ladies performance blends first-rate musicianship, an impressive command of the Irish traditional repertoire, a great feel for contemporary tastes and humor, and tour-de-force step dancing. The step dancers include the likes of Eileen Golden, Donny Golden, Kevin Broesler, and Sheila Ryan.

JAN CHRISTENSEN

When not singing in the shower to the adoring howls of his wife and cats, Jan can be heard in clubs and spaces throughout the New York metropolitan area, New Jersey, and the Hudson Valley. His blend of original, traditional, and contemporary songs, ballads, and chantey paints a picture of our changing relationship with the water around us from Colonial times to the present.

A native New Yorker whose family has lived in the Hudson Valley since the time of the Dutch settlement of New Netherland, Jan's nautical songs draw on his experiences sailing on the Caribbean and on the Hudson, where he has served as a long-time member of the Hudson River Sloop Singers, Clearwater's musical arm.

Marilyn Christensen

CINDERELLA: THE TRASHY MUSICAL

Apple Tree Productions' version of Cinderella: The Trashy Musical was commissioned by the Putnam County 4-H Youth Fair in 1995 to dramatize the fair's theme, "environmental awareness." The show has since been presented in local theaters, libraries, and schools.

Apple Tree was founded in 1992 to present "children's theater for grownups too." Other productions include Jack and the Beanstalk, Goldilocks and the Three Bears, Two Chinese Folk Tales, and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.

Apple Tree is currently the resident theater ensemble at Pace University in White Plains.

PERFORMERS

Ani DiFranco

Honor for her fantasy album North of Mars, Lui's inspired performances are met with enthusiasm by children of all ages.

Known for her exquisite, haunting voice, Lui melds her broad performing experience - from classical orchestras (on violin and french horn) to bagpipe bands (Celtic and folk) - into the warm and passionate sound that has made her a favorite at festivals for 25 years.

Come and be spellbound.

David Conover

DAVID CONOVER

Using voice, costume, and characterization, David Conover brings dramatic stories to life by acting out the cast of characters. "My interest in storytelling stems from reading Coleridge's epic poem The Rime of the Ancient Mariner," he says. "It's the story of a storyteller doomed to walk the Earth in search of an audience - I can relate to that." Actually, as a former Clearwater educator, David found many a captive audience. These days, when he's not writing grants or teaching for Clearwater, David is an actor in community theater, and he likes to write stories as well as tell them.

While he was studying literature at Duke University, Donald Davis realized he already knew the Canterbury Tales, King Lear, and many of the other classics - they were the basis of many of the tales he had learned from his family of traditional storytellers, who have lived on the same Western North Carolina land since 1781.

After 23 years in the ministry, he retired to travel and perform as one of America's most-loved storytellers. He is the author of five books for adults and numerous recordings for adults and young adults.

Dan Einbender

ANI DIFRANCO

Ani DiFranco began her career as a folk-punk musician and agitator when she was just seventeen years old, and has since released eight recordings of tough, free-thinking acoustic songs on her own Righteous Babe label. Her music combines passionate, rapid-fire guitar with lyrics that are pure, candid, and often brutally honest. She has performed close to a thousand concerts, and her large and loyal following has bought more than 175,000 copies of her recordings.

"I believe in that step of not just making revolutionary music, but making it in a way the challenges the system," Ani has said. This fiercely independent singer-songwriter keeps turning down major label deals to put out her own records. Her last four releases have made CMJ's Top 100 charts, and her sharp-witted, intense live shows play to sold-out houses on both sides of the Atlantic.

DAN EINBENDER

Dan joined the sloop Clearwater in 1980, working at various times as cook, environmental educator, musical director, and composer for Arm-of-the-Sea Puppet Theater. He's also a certified music therapist, and certainly a mainstay of the Hudson River Sloop Singers.

Last year he produced a long-awaited collection of mostly original material including the ubiquitous "It Really Isn't Garbage" and featuring a vast array of musical Clearwater friends. This new, rather unconventional children's recording, Dinner Alone is a Bore, (the title is also a children's book), features the "It Really Isn't Garbage" Chorale.

THE FODDRELLS

At the Foddrells' numerous family gatherings, Joe Owens attained an understanding of the late Turner Foddrell's unwavering style and dedication to his blues. Joe Owens and Lynn Foddrell - Turner's son - have been playing blues and jazz together for several years at widely attended events in North Carolina and Virginia.

Lynn and Turner have performed their blues at Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center, and the North Carolina Blues Festival. Joe has done extensive studio work from bluegrass to gospel to jazz. Joe's jazz influence has melded with the Foddrell blues for a sound that has captivated audiences.

THE GALAX WAY

The Galax Way string band features the hard-driving music of southern Virginia, specifically from Galax. It's the home of the world-famous Galax Fiddlers Convention, now going on 50+ continuous years of fiddling fests. Galax has been home to many great rural string musicians, including Kyle Creed, Fred Cochraham, and Wade Ward.

The Galax Way string band features the fiddling and singing of Greg Hooven, a multiple first-place fiddle champ in numerous fiddle contests and a specialist in the Galax sound. Greg has released several cassettes, including Tribute to Fred Cochraham, Old Sport, and Back Step. Riley Gaugus, guitarist, grew up in the area, visiting such fiddle masters as Tommy Jarrell. Riley has played in several old-time string bands including The Red Hots. Bass player Heidi Sanders and Greg sing duets; Ray Alden, one of Clearwater's dedicated, long-time Revival volunteers, will join in on banjo.

RONNIE GILBERT

in excerpts from "Mother Jones"

In the fifties Ronnie Gilbert's joyous contralto and vibrant personality enriched the celebrated singing group The Weavers. In the sixties she turned her talents to experimental theater, working with Joseph Chaikin, Meredith Monk, Elizabeth Swados, and others in a variety of innovative dramatic works. In the seventies she earned an M.A. in clinical psychology and worked for some time as a therapist and counselor.

Now her concert career is once again

At the Revival, Ronnie will appear with pianist Janet Hood in excerpts from American Agitator, a play about the life of legendary labor agitator Mother Jones, with lyrics by Ronnie and music by Jeff Langley.

STEVE GILLETTE & CINDY MANGSEN

Accomplished musicians with over ten albums between them, Cindy and Steve have been travelling, performing, and recording together since their marriage in 1989. Cindy has been called one of the finest pure ballad singers in folk today, while Steve is a prolific singer-songwriter who has achieved respected tenure in the tough climes of the L.A. recording industry. They have appeared in concert throughout Europe and the US, at major folk festivals, and on television.

Their voices weave together perfectly in powerful harmony, accompanied by guitar, banjo, English concertina, and mountain dulcimer, whether in a ghostly old Australian ballad, an early blues piece, or one of their captivating original songs.

JOHN GORKA

Rolling Stone has called him "the pre-eminent singer-songwriter of the New Folk movement."

Known for his rich baritone and poignant acoustic guitar, John Gorka creates an enticing musical blend of folk and rock and evokes a panoply of provocative images, all revolving around his subtle and witty way with words.

Whether demystifying a legend or making art out of the lives of men and women on the street, John constantly finds new, intriguing ways to explore the ironies and absurdities, the joys and sorrows, of the human condition, and to share his discoveries in songs that touch our hearts and minds.

This is John Gorka's Clearwater Revival debut.

mont," Gould and Stearns serve up physical, visual, and verbal comic theater with heart, in the tradition of the Marx Brothers, Charlie Chaplin, and Monty Python.

In 20 years they have logged over 2000 performances, standing ovations in 40 states, 4 international tours, 3 Vermont Council on the Arts Fellowships, an award-winning play, a successful book, and a reputation for laughter that leaps large generation gaps in a single bound!

GREG GREENWAY

Lest we forget the almost lost art of real audience participation...meet Greg Greenway!

A one-man tour de force, Greg will keep you involved to the max. His fluency with guitar and powerhouse vocals, ranging from gospel to blues to folksy-funny, his formidable songwriting skills, and his energetic and engaging stage presence are all part and parcel of the really, truly, live performance that is Greg Greenway.

KIM & REGGIE HARRIS AND MAGPIE

They say the magic of their music is in the quality of their voices.

With 9 albums between them, Terry Leonino & Greg Artzner (Magpie) and Kim & Reggie Harris, each a stunning duo, combine their powerful voices and spirited instrumentals (guitars, mandolin, harmonica, dulcimer, concertina, drum, and Native American flute) to bring you a rainbow of songs from traditional to topical, many of them original compositions, in an endless variety of styles from reggae to spirituals.

A glorious musical experience both thought-provoking and uplifting, their amazing four-part harmonies will leave you breathless, speechless, and begging for more.

HUDSON RIVER SLOOP SINGERS

This large, ever-changing, cheerful group of musicians share a common neighborhood - the Hudson River Valley - and sing in support of the environmental efforts of the Hudson River Sloop Clearwater and the ferry sloops Woody Guthrie and Sojourner Truth. Teens and seniors, professional musicians and just plain folks who love to sing join together in sea chantneys, topical songs, gospel, Yiddish melodies, country, tunes of the British Isles, and original compositions, in addition to traditional songs of the Hudson Valley. The emphasis is on singable songs, and the audience is invited to join in.

STEVE AND SHIRL KAPLAN

Steve and Shirl Kaplan have been singing in the shower together for twenty-three years. In recent years, their beautifully crafted harmonies have been heard at coffeehouses in their native Hudson Valley. They have been singing at Clearwater festivals for more than a decade as members of the Walkabout Chorus and the Sloop Singers. Their eclectic mu-

GEOFF KAUFMAN

Geoff's early taste for music and the sea were nurtured in the mid-70s aboard Clearwater.

Open his ditty bag today, and out pour songs of the sea, songs of the earth, songs of the heart and spirit, ancient ballads, songs of work, love, and struggle, humorous glimpses of human foibles, and insights into history.

His rich tenor voice and exuberant love of singing have had audiences singing with him up and down both coasts, as well as in France, Portugal, Poland, the Netherlands, and England.

A longtime friend of Clearwater, Geoff can be found these days at Mystic Seaport, where he serves as Coordinator of Special Music Programs.

LOUISE KESSEL

Once upon a time, Louise Kessel was bos'n on Clearwater. Now she lives in North Carolina, where she has helped organize a riverside clean-up and the Haw River Festival. She returns to the Revival each year to tell stories about rivers and gardens, weavers and spinners, and stubborn old women, frogs and the moon goddess.

Louise's stories come from many sources, including her Japanese-Jewish family background. With her long braids flying and hands dancing, she signs, stomps or chants her tales, enriching them with her exuberant imagination.

LIBANA

Recognized nationally since 1979 for their unique perspective on world music, Libana's exquisite harmonies, mesmerizing dance, and captivating rhythms take audiences on a musical journey that circles the globe. From Argentinean love songs to an Egyptian ritual dance, from a Bulgarian harvest song to a graceful Hawaiian hula, Libana's performances illuminate the passions, power, and celebrations of the world's women.

Sing Out magazine wrote: "The group's rich harmonies, instrumental textures, and arrangements of traditional world music are breathtaking."

ROBIN MELLO

Stilt-dancer, singer, vaudevillian, and writer, Robin Mello is at the Revival this year as an Antic Arts performer and storyteller. She has traveled around the world performing at the International Solstice Street Festival in the former Soviet Union, appearing on NBC's Three Stories Tall, and traveling through Canada for the International Reading Association. LORIL MOONDREAM AND PETER WHITE FOX

Loril MoonDream, a White Mountain Apache from New Mexico, grew up with her grandparents in a traditional way. She is a teacher, artist, musician, and storyteller. Her love for all life, great and small, has helped her develop a style of sharing that is intimate and friendly. Her taxidermy skills are traditional (chemical free) and the results of these arts serve to enrich and enlighten environmental awareness.

Peter White Fox, of Blackfoot heritage, grew up in small town setting in Massachusetts. He is a musician, actor, and artisan. He blends his acting and puppetry abilities with storytelling to achieve a unique understanding and open involvement with an audience of any age.

Motoko

MOTOKO

Clad in a Japanese kimono jacket called haori, Motoko kneels on the floor and weaves intricate tales from the distant past, or stands up to create imaginative new environments. Audiences are invariably transported.

Motoko's art is a fusion of mime movement and oral tradition. Her repertoire includes folktales from Japan, Korea and China, as well as original mime stories stemming from personal experience.

A native of Japan, she has trained in mime with Tony Montanaro, Kiyoshi Shimizu and Robert Rivest and in storytelling with Eshu Bumpus. She performs at schools and colleges throughout New England, and recently appeared on Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood.

MUSTARD'S RETREAT

Ann Arbor, Michigan, 1974. Between slinging hash and flying garbanzos, two cooks discover their mutual interest in songwriting, playing guitar, and not cooking. After an afternoon's rehearsal, they take three songs down to open-mike night at the legendary Ark Coffeehouse, get invited back two weeks later to the Ark's Invitational Hoot, and Mustard's Retreat is born.

Valhalla, New York, 1996. Four well-received albums and many tours and festivals later, David Tamulevich and Michael Hough arrive at Revival to revive and enlighten with "music to cure what ails you;" a contagious concoction of traditional and contemporary music, simmered into a brew of original songs and stories, and served up with humor and enthusiasm. Soup's up!

RICK NESTLER

Dom Pirone of the Hudson River Fishermen calls him "a real Hudson River Troubadour." Joe Franklin of WOR-TV calls him "the Hudson River Balladeer." Pete Seeger calls Rick "the Terror of the River, raffish Rick Nestler." A singer, actor, sailor, songwriter, radio show host, and producer, Rick once again brings his unique blend of traditional, contemporary, original, country, folk-rock, Irish songs, and chanteys to the Revival. He also brings copies of his record, Spending My Days, featuring "The River That Flows Both Ways," for sale.

NEW YORK CITY LABOR CHORUS

Over 70 members from a dozen NYC labor unions form the New York City Labor Chorus. Since its debut performance at the 1991 Bread and Roses Cultural Conference at 1199 Headquarters in NYC, the chorus has performed at picket lines, rallies and demonstrations, in union halls, schools, and hospitals. This multi-ethnic, multi-generational group performs not only union songs and songs of social protest, but also songs reflecting the rich diversity of working people's culture -

ONAWUMI JEAN MOSS

Onawumi Jean Moss began learning the art of storytelling at a young age. Her mother, a home missionary and self-taught Bible historian, and her father, a fan of eerie and sometimes funny ghost stories, provided her with an early understanding of the power of telling tales. Her interests have expanded over the years, and she has integrated her knowledge of the history and folklore of cultures around the world into her tales of wonder, liberation, praise, trickery, and spirituality.

Associate Dean of Students at Amherst

College, Onawumi Jean Moss also founded and directs the dynamic Keepers of the Word Storytelling Festival at Amherst, and she is a lifetime member of the National Association of Black Storytellers. Her work has won the admiration and following of listeners from a wide range of cultural backgrounds.

TOM PAXTON

Describing Tom Paxton as one of her influences, Nancy Griffith said, "I think we were all born singing Tom Paxton songs. He has such an amazing ability to write these classic songs that sound like nobody wrote 'em."

Tom Paxton's voice addresses issues of injustice and inhumanity, lays bare the absurdity of modern culture, and celebrates the most tender bonds of family, friends, and community. He has been an integral part of the folk music community since the early sixties folk scene in Greenwich Village, and he continues to be a primary influence on today's "New Folk" generation.

Tom has performed thousands of memorable concerts and written such modern standards as "The Last Thing on My Mind," "Ramblin' Boy," "Whose Garden Was This," and "The Marvelous Toy." His most recent CD Wearing the Time was nominated in 1995 as Best Folk Album by the NAIRD organization.

FAITH PETRIC

Our favorite Geritol Gypsy, Faith Petric,

Tom Paxton

also known as the Fort Knox of Folk Music, has turned 80! "I was born in a log cabin at Orofino, Idaho, not far from the Clearwater River, on September 13, 1915. My first singing was in church, in one-room schools and with my father, an itinerant preacher, school teacher, farmer, carpenter, and inventor. About 1925 I discovered cowboy and country songs, followed by the great protest songs of the 1930s. And I'm still addicted to all of them. Plus traditional folksongs absorbed here and there, contemporary topical songs, labor songs; in fact, any song with a tune or a special meaning that appeals."

"Whether or not this makes me a real, honest-to-goodness Folk Singer from the True Vine depends on the individual point of view. I think of myself only as liking to sing, and I try to sing what I feel and what a song means to me. I hope that people hearing the songs will like them and feel them, too."

Tom Porter & grandson, Roweron

TOM PORTER (Sakokwenionkwas)

Former chief Tom Porter is spiritual leader and spokesman for Kanatsiohareke (place of the clean pot), the Mohawk* community along the Mohawk River about 50 miles west of Albany. He was taught at an early age by his grandmother to keep alive the Mohawk traditions. With his own and several other families from the northern NY Akwasasne Reservation he returned in 1994 to ancestral land to live simply in the traditions of their Iroquois forebears - an extension of the reservation without the gambling and violence that has overtaken Mohawk life along the Canadian border and in Ontario. Kanatsiohareke is an immersion community (see page 9 for story). The families "steep themselves in the language, spirituality, myths, rituals, values and culture of their ancestors." (The Arizona Daily Star)

Tom Porter will open Revival '96 with an abbreviated version of the traditional Iroquois Thanksgiving; look for him also at Story Grove.

* The Mohawk is one of the six nations of the Iroquois Confederacy founded by the legendary chief Hiawatha (Anglicized spelling courtesy of Longfellow).

JOSÉ QUEZADA Y LOS CINCO DIABLOS

Some half million Dominicans live in New York City, having moved here to escape the social inequalities and lack of economic opportunity at home. Today's Dominican merengue is currently the most popular Latino dance rhythm in NYC, putting salsa in second place.

José Quezada and his band modernize the folk merengue of the northern Cibao Region in the Dominican Republic. The style is also called "Perico Ripiao," meaning "deboned parrot," after both a house of ill repute in Cibao and the edible bird that may have been served.

The band consists of José Quezada on accordion, Bienevido Sosa on saxophone, Miquel Grullon on double-headed tambora drum, Freddie Pichardo on güira (scraper), Pedro Lombillo on conga drums, and William Rojas on bass guitar.

ROGER THE JESTER

Happily ensconced with his family in North Egremont, Massachusetts, Roger the Jester is quickly becoming the buffoon of choice in the Berkshires and beyond. His antic-filled, spontaneous combustion of skills too numerous to list is a rare example of "in the moment" theater in this era of canned entertainment. Come and see how 23 years of international jesting has empowered Roger to be a true Master of Mirth. Ask him for your complimentary thaumatrope kit.

GARNET ROGERS

In a darkened bedroom, lit only by the amber glow from an old floor model radio, two young brothers, aged 6 and 12, lay in their beds listening to country music broadcasts from the Grand Ol' Opry. Two years later, the younger one, Garnet

Roger the Jester

Rogers, was playing the definitive 8-year-old's version of "Desolation Row" on his ukulele, an instrument soon abandoned in favor of flute, violin, and guitar. Within 10 years, and barely out of high school, Garnet Rogers was on the road as a full-time working musician with his older brother Stan.

Born in Hamilton, Ontario, of Nova Scotian parents, Garnet is a man with a powerful physical presence. He is close to six and a half feet tall with a smooth, dark, baritone voice, incredible range, and thoughtful, dramatic phrasing. An optimist at heart, he sings memorable songs about people who are not obvious heroes and about the small victories of the everyday. His sixth solo recording, Summer Lightning, preserves the urgency and majesty of Garnet Rogers and fiddler Doug Long in concert.

WHITEVILLE APPAREL GOSPEL CHOIR

About 26 voices, members of Whiteville, NC Local Union 1077 UNITE are directed by Melvin Chambers, accompanied by Kenny Stanley in a repertoire of mostly gospel and labor songs that they've performed in Miami, Atlanta, Greensboro, and all around North Carolina.

"People won't listen to big speeches," points out spokeswoman Ruby Stanley. "But they can get a message from the song."

BILL ROSS

Bill Ross has been a New Vaudeville artist since 1982. He has worked as a juggler, comic, and street performer under the name Jerzy Shore, and as a clown under the name Ebenezer J. Sneezer; he also works under his real name as an actor on the legitimate stage. Why all the names, you ask? Well, he's wanted in 10 states.

Just kidding! The truth is, every venue has its own personality, and Bill tailors each show to its audience. (And if changing his name helps him do that, what do you care?) He also holds a B.A. in Theater and Social Issues from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

JODY SCALISE & PAUL RICHMOND

Scalise & Richmond are well known in New England for their show "Up in Smoke," which gives the audience "Choice" as the main concept to empower their thinking and decision-making concerning substance abuse.

Jody Scalise, a motion artist and creator of the comedy troupe "The Wright Brothers" will perform at Revival both solo and in duet with Paul Richmond.

Paul Richmond's "Dancing Sticks" and "Air Painting" have been consistent favorites with Revival audiences for many years. "We are all jugglers," reminds Paul. "Just look at our daily lives."

DEAN STEVENS

Born and raised in Costa Rica, Dean Stevens is a lifelong student of Latin America. He learned Spanish at an early age, and has established himself as a formidable creator and interpreter of a wide spectrum of songs in English and Spanish. An exuberant performer of distinctive style and wit, he combines an intricate, self-taught guitar style with a versatile and expressive singing voice.

Dean travels frequently to Central America, and has become known for his humanitarian efforts on behalf of refugees returning to their homes in El Salvador and Guatemala. He has made four recordings; his newest release, Eyes of Add multi-instrumentalist virtuoso Peter Davis on vocals, clarinet, sax, and banjo, unforgettable songstylist Dave Davies with his essential swing trombone, and the incredible coronet of Peter Ecklund. Don't forget the versatile, energetic bass of Rick Palley. And to complete the soul/sole-stirring ensemble, toss in popular caller Liz Slade.

You may have heard Swingology as the house band on Public Radio's Dancing on the Air, or on Garrison Keillor's American Radio Company. Jay & Molly's traditional playing was featured throughout the soundtrack of PBS's The Civil War, whose theme, "Ashokan Farewell," won Jay a Grammy nomination.

SARAH UNDERHILL

This Hudson Valley singer, songwriter, and song collector learned to sing on her mother's knee, and has been amassing a folk repertoire eversince. Former second mate/engineer on the Clearwater (circa 1979), she has more recently acted as a mainstay of the Hudson River Sloop Singers. Her unaccompanied ballad singing has captivated many an audience.

VIEUX TEMPS

This group of young musicians grew up with Cajun music. Mitch Reed began playing fiddle in 1988 at age seventeen after hearing Cajun musicians Octa Clarke and Hector Duhon. Wade Frugé was a major influence on Mitch's Creole-sounding fiddle style. Lisa Trahan's great uncle was accordionist Bixy Guidry, and she often accompanied her father, Harry Trahan, another wonderful Cajun accordionist, on her guitar. Adrian Huval, born in 1966, listened to Cajun music on his parents' recordings and on local radio stations. Jam sessions at a pizza parlor in Cecilia helped to define Adrian's accordion style. Guitarist Randy Virdrine grew up in Ville Platte, Louisiana, speaking French until he began grammar school, and has performed Cajun music for twenty-four years. Mitch and Randy have recorded with Macauley-Reed-Virdrine (1929 and Back) and Tasso (The Old Timey Way; Viens a Ma Maison).

Walkabout Clearwater Chorus

Clearwater's message where the big boat can't go: to the streets and lanes of the land, at festivals and parades. Its crew is the Walkabout Chorus, a people's chorus open to all.

The chorus always urges listeners to sing along, seeking to dissolve the distinction between performer and audience. It rehearses once a month in Yonkers and keeps busy during the winter with a monthly coffeehouse at the Harvey School in Katonah NY.

GEORGE WARD

Singer, folklorist, and songwriter, George Ward has his roots planted firmly in the traditional music of upstate New York. He has documented, presented, or performed with most of the region's important tradition-bearers in the course of a thirty-year musical career, and has researched and directed regional historical music for a half-dozen documentary films. A current project - due to be released this fall - is a recording of songs of the Down-Rent Wars that will, he says, "just scratch the musical surface of one of the most prolific, and least known, singing social movements in American history."

ERIC WEISSBERG

In 1959, Eric Weissberg joined the folk group The Tarriers, touring world-wide for six years. Since then, as a top New York studio musician, he has logged over eight thousand sessions - jingles, movie soundtracks, and records - playing guitar, pedal steel guitar, mandolin, dobro, and fiddle, as well as banjo, for such diverse artists as The Talking Heads, Willie Nelson, Barbra Streisand, John Denver, and Bruce Springsteen.

In 1973, Eric had a number one single with "Dueling Banjos," the soundtrack from the movie Deliverance. He is a five-time winner of the New York NARAS Most Valuable Player Award.

Lately Eric has returned to live performing. He is currently touring worldwide and recording with Art Garfunkel, Tom Paxton, and others.

of Sligo.

Described as "one of the finest box players in the world," Johnny grew up Irish in Dunstable, England. A true virtuoso, he recorded his first solo album at the age of 14. A long-time Green Linnet artist, he released a brand new solo album, Celtic Reflections: Misty-Eyed Morning on Narada.

Pat came to the US from County Kildare in 1989 and quickly established himself as "the most progressive, dynamic guitarist currently performing Irish music." His 1995 Green Linnet album, Loose Cannon, received Grammy nominations in five different categories.

Between Pat's original songs and stellar strings, and Johnny's blazing button accordion, they'll have you dancing on your blanket!

Dar Williams
DAR WILLIAMS

Dar's 1995 debut CD, The Honesty Room, was an underdog success story. Recorded in a tiny basement studio in western Massachusetts, the CD immediately won a sheaf of glowing reviews, including two features in Billboard. Her insightful songs and supple voice established her as a top female indie artist on Triple-A radio. At stations in New York, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, San Francisco, and Nashville, Dar Williams was the most requested artist for several weeks running. Her word-of-mouth success includes a web page on the Internet (<http://www.panix.com/~tneff/dar/>).

Dar adopted a grueling touring schedule, logging over 200 nights on the road in 1995. "On the road," she has said, "I get a stronger sense of myself as a traveler, and a stronger sense of myself as a person, a person who needs a home." Now that her new album, Mortal City, is ready for release, Dar will be hitting the road again, this time on a national tour with Joan Baez.

THE YURI YUNAKOV BAND

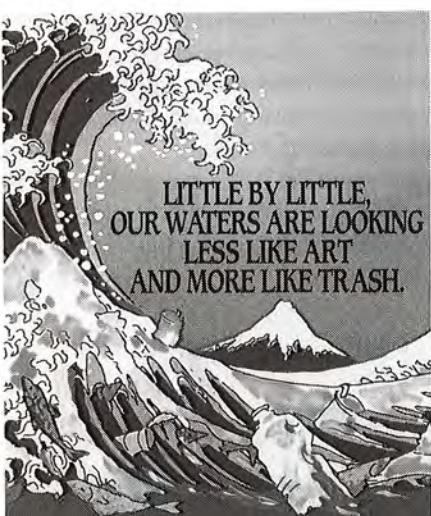

The Yuri Yunakov Band plays contemporary Balkan "wedding music" from Bulgaria and Macedonia, a mixture of traditional folk music, jazz, and rock. Saxophone player Yuri Yunakov, a Turkish Rom (Gypsy) from Bulgaria, has toured Europe and the US with Ivo Papazov's band Trakiya for ten years. He is featured on the two Ryko CDs Balkanology and Orpheus Ascending, and the Traditional Crossroads CD Gypsy Fire. He currently resides in New York where he is in great demand for Macedonian, Albanian, Rom, Turkish, and Armenian weddings. The other members of the band are Catherine Foster (clarinet), Strahil Vankov (accordion), Seido Salifoski (drums), Krasimir Koumin (bass guitar), Brad Schoeppach (guitar), and Carol Silverman (vocals).
